

Jennifer D'Antonio completed a doctoral degree in Chemistry with a minor in Biotechnology from North Carolina State University. Currently, she is a chemistry faculty member at the University of South Carolina at Beaufort.

She started teaching science to undergraduate students since graduate school and has been teaching for 10 years. Teaching is her passion and getting to learn new cultures interests her.